

Hello, this is Tom Cookman with a Community Comment

I spend a lot of time in the business community and politics is discussed more than anything else. Where we live is geographically isolated, so my circle of contact is very limited, but we are well informed. The common thread is apathy when it comes to Obama's policies. This indifference will get Obama re-elected. I don't understand why he is getting a free pass on his disastrous management of our country. Our President has blundered his way through his first three years. In the beginning everything was President Bush's fault, and today it is the lack of cooperation in the House and Senate. Everything wrong is blamed on the Republicans. I for one can't stand someone who refuses to take responsibility for his actions. When I was raising my children, I never let them get away with casting the blame at someone else. This is a childish approach to life, and President Barack Obama has been throwing a temper tantrum for the last three years. He refuses to accept the fact that his policies are flawed. Come on, everything that is wrong with this country is the Republican's fault? Are you serious? He was the least experienced candidate to ever be elected President, and this inexperience has taken this country down a path that we may never recover from. As the political season heats up, remember this FACT: For the first two years of his Presidency, Barack Obama had a Democrat majority in both the House and Senate. It is a FACT that this President has accumulated more than one-third of our country's entire debt in three short years. He has taken us into debt over FIVE TRILLION dollars in this time frame. This year, under his leadership, our country is going into debt at an astonishing rate of $63,000 per second. That is over five billion dollars of new debt every single day. This is UNSUSTAINABLE. It doesn't matter if you are a Democrat or a Republican; this debt accumulation is destroying our country. If you listen to Barack Obama, he will tell you over and over that he just needs four more years to see his policies succeed. He has already started his campaign and the direction he is taking is one of LIES and DECEIT. I heard him state as a fact that he has created jobs. Please don't accept this man at his word. The facts prove otherwise. He is a liar. There has been a net loss of jobs since he took office. The Bureau of Labor Statistics website proves that Barack Obama is lying. When he took office there were a little over 136 million people working. Today there are 131 million people employed. I have a degree in accounting and if I put all that education to work on this math problem, I come up with five million fewer people working today than when he took office. Of course Barack Obama has never been good at math. In Beaverton Oregon during his last campaign he stated that he had been to every corner of this country and has been in 57 states. WOW! My six year old Granddaughter knows there are 50 states and I'd bet everyone listening to this radio station knows there are 50 states as well. The bottom line is that we made a huge mistake electing Barack Obama and our country can't afford four more years of his reckless spending. If spending money improved our economy, we would be in the greatest economic upswing in United States history. Our country needs him to be a one term President.

This has been Tom Cookman with a Community Comment